A GAIN, "the world's biggest bank" makes its bow, bigger than any thus far. Charles E. Mitchell, head of New York's National City Bank, absorbs the Corn Exchange Bank, creating an institution with resources of two thousand five hundred millions of dollars.

THIS one financial giant will have 100 branch banks in New York. The old-fashioned million has given way to the new "billion."

When will the TRILLION be transferred from books on astronomy to the books of United States bankers.

IN Wall Street a broker has closed up. His story is sad and brief. HE SOLD SHORT.

To "short" a bank stock with banks getting from 19 to 20 per cent for money on call, calls for an investigation in lunacy.

WILLIAM FOX'S new "grandeur" film, showing moving and talking pictures on a screen of gigantic size, now seen in New York, is a most important contribution to the motion picture art and industry.

MR. FOX is to be congratulated upon an achievement more remarkable and beautiful, combining with perfect sound, a screen that makes it possible to show the falls of Niagara, the rapids below and the Maid of the Mist, all at one time.

THIS new Fox picture, developing motion, depth, size, and sound on a scale hitherto undreamed of is a most remarkable achievement.

THE German Kaiser said women should attend to their three K's, kinder, kueche, kirche, "children, kitchen, church." He will be surprised to read the statistics about working people in Britain.

Among those that work from ages 15 to 55, there are 1,500,000 more women than men.

BRITAIN is disturbed because the nation seems to have reached the "stationary point in population."

No wonder. The same animal cannot be a good brood mare and a good cart horse.

SCIENCE says old age is really an illness not inevitable. Age is called "progressive condensation of tissue due to loss of water."

Energy that age lacks is located in the ductless glands. When your own glands wear out some of them, including some of the most important, can be rejuvenated.

One pupil of Steinhilber of Vienna has restored youth and the "desire to whistle and sing" in 700 old men.

London's World League for Sexual Reform is much interested in this.

The majority of human beings, however, are still interested in the fact that when the time comes they can die in peace and start again.

THE Prince of Wales buys his first airplane, making his first flight as an owner, to see father at Sandringham. It is a G. H. Gypsy Moth, price only $3,300. The Prince would not buy anything but "Pure British." The little machine makes 90 miles an hour, is painted bright red and blue, and carries a silver plate marked "H. R. H. the Prince of Wales."

The little machine with aluminum nose is upholstered in scarlet leather, which can be inflated to avoid bumps.

TRAIN SPEED LIMIT STUDIED

Mayor Uncertain Regarding Action on Ordinance.

No action has been taken today by Mayor Ralph C. Benedum on the ordinance, passed on three readings under suspension of the rules last Monday night, which fixes the speed limit of Pennsylvania railroad trains through East Liverpool at 35 miles an hour.

An old ordinance passed several years ago fixed a six-mile speed limit. The 25-mile legislation was introduced at the request of the railroad company, city officials said.

The mayor has until Wednesday in which to sign, veto or permit the ordinance to become a law without his signature.

"I have received one complaint regarding the proposed legislation," said the mayor today. "I am giving it thoughtful consideration before taking any action."

Texas Girl Freed On Holdup Charges

Jury, for Third Time, Disagrees After 50-hour Deadlock in Rogers Case.

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., Sept. 21.—(INS)—Rebecca Rogers, former Texas university co-ed who was charged with the robbery of the Farmers National of Buda, Tex., is a free woman today as far as the state is concerned.

Her jury, following a 50-hour deadlock, was discharged last night without agreeing on a verdict, and the girl who was accused of robbing two bank clerks of $1,000 at the point of a revolver, was assured of her freedom when District Attorney Fred Blundell announced that he is "through with the case."

Five times yesterday the jury demanded the court to discharge them when it was evident that the ballot would remain nine to three for acquittal. Each time the judge ordered the jury to deliberate further.

The twelve jurors deliberated by kicking on the jury room door and shouting their demands for discharge. Bailiffs reinforced the door when the hinges showed signs of weakening under the blows from the square-toed boots of the jurymen.

The trial was the third Mrs. Rogers has stood. The first trial resulted in her being sentenced to the penitentiary for 14 years. The sentence was reversed on appeal, however, and she was sent to La Grange, Tex., for trial. The second trial resulted in a mistrial as did the last one.

Mrs. Rogers was defended by her husband whom she met and married when both were students at the University of Texas.

BEER SEIZED Pennsylvania Police Assist Two Sheriff Squads.

Ohio and Pennsylvania authorities joined forces at 8:40 o'clock this morning in the second liquor raid within seven weeks on "Hell's Half Acre," a wooded zone at the juncture of the two states.

Raiders Meet in Midland. Jacob Eckert was arrested on a liquor possession charge by Sheriff William Barlow, Lisbon, after the raiders found a small quantity of whisky and bottles of home brew near the Eckert home. He was taken to the county jail at Lisbon to await a hearing before Probate Judge Lodge Riddle on Monday morning.

Sheriff Charles Kennedy and two deputies and Detectives Charles McLaughlin and Brennan of Beaver county, and three members of the Pennsylvania state constabulary co-operated with a Columbiana county squad in the raid.

Sheriff Barlow and his deputies left Lisbon at 6:40 o'clock this morning, going to Midland, Pa., where they met the Beaver county members of the raiding party.

Eckert was arrested in a liquor raid by officials of the two states on July 26, when he was fined $1,000 by Probate Judge Riddle on a liquor possession count.

The liquor seized today was concealed, near the Eckert home, Barlow said. Two cartons of empty bottles, corks, coloring material and other supplies were found in the house, he reported. The liquor and beer were brought to the county jail as evidence.

Barlow denied the issuance of any other search warrants for liquor raids today.

SUMMITVILLE ROAD RUSHED

Kirk Complains on California Hollow Job.

LISBON, O., Sept. 21.—Rough grading in the Summitville-Kensington road will be finished within two weeks, Contractor Den J. Francis of East Palestine, said today. This road, which will tap the Lincoln highway at Kensington, will be given a concrete surface next year, and will provide a new outlet from Sallenville westward through Summitville to Kensington. This is one of the last jobs of the county's major road program.

Part of this road is over a new route, and lies wholly within Columbiana county. A part of the former road between Summitville and Kensington was through East township in Carroll county.

It has also been announced by the county commissioners that the road between Franklin Square in Salem township and the Lisbon-Salem highway will be given a macadam top next year. Part of this road was graded several years ago. The two roads intersect north of Eagleton Glen and north of the concrete bridge spanning Beaver creek.

Complaint has been made by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk to the state highway department about the slow work of the McLean Construction Company of Bellaire on the improvement of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road in Liverpool and St. Clair townships, which is commonly known as the California Hollow section. No concrete has been poured on this section, and it has been said that the state will have to spend not less than $10,000 in maintaining a traffic-bound road through the hollow this winter unless contractors show more activity. Lack of equipment is given as the reason for the slow progress.

Rush Model of Aero-Train. Work is being rushed on the full-size model of the cigar-shaped trains which are to be suspended from an overhead track in Scotland and be driven by an airplane propeller. George Beattie, the Scotch inventor, believes that speeds up to 100 miles an hour will be possible. At high speeds the streamline cars will rise slightly, taking their weight from the overhead rails. A double line of overhead airplane ways is estimated to cost about $55,000 a mile, which is about one-third the cost of ordinary rail tracks.

Dahlia Show

If the interest of the public in horticulture is as great as that of the members of the East Liverpool Dahlia society in floral beauty, and it should be, all records for attendance will be broken tonight at the fourth annual show in the Trotter-Chevrolet building, Market street.

More than 200 exhibits, all combining to make the setting attractive to the eye, have been entered in the two-day show which opened last night.

The displays have been arranged in a manner that appeals, and members of the society, who are organized for the sole purpose of encouraging cultivation of the tuberous-rooted flowers, are ready and willing to explain the secrets of their dahlia successes.

It is an interesting exhibit and well worth a visit.

Measure For Measure

In Tokio, his honor the mayor, Mr. Horikiri, has been forced to accept a salary cut of 4,000 yen. This was done, according to city assemblymen, because he failed to pay the customary courtesy calls and give the usual number of parties to city officials. Additional reasons were that the mayor is young and lacks personal weight. Just incidentally it is mentioned that a policy of economy undertaken by the municipal administration necessitated the cut. In Japan, the mayor is evidently obliged to give full measure of service in return for his salary.

Mr. Horikiri, however, determined to effect reforms, is apparently unconcerned and is turning his attention to a sweeping dismissal of incapable officials, installed under the spoils system practiced by his predecessor. Dozens of these personal appointees are being turned out to shift for themselves, their places being filled with men better qualified for their positions.

It is an interesting tale and readily adaptable to almost any municipal government. Favored in America, would that sort of treatment result in a campaign to straighten out civic affairs, to eliminate all unworthy occupants from office and to make the city a better place?

The Japanese frequently do or say something to warrant a great deal of faith in their good, sound sense and the action of the citizens of Tokio in reducing Mr. Horikiri's salary, because he didn't quite come up to their requirements is fair proof that they understand one effective way to keep civic officials on the alert. Pay them a fair return on the services rendered and watch the struggle to improve.

The "Boo!" Takes a Bride

"Boo!" Montana, who never won any blue ribbons at baby shows, and who could not now expect to gain any personal distinction as a candidate for Mr. America honors, has been married to Mary Matthews Poulson, 23-year-old Hollywood menace and as pretty as her husband is facially ugly. The 41-year-old ex-wrestler, ex-cowboy, ex-soldier and a movie star whose ferocious mien has been a jewel for movie producers seeking a villain, was disconcerted at the marriage license bureau.

"Boo!" Montana's personal pulchritude is minus. He is probably the world's champion ugly man. Yet he has a reputation for being docile enough when not working as a wrestler or a movie villain. It must be that his heart is like every other fellow's heart—capable of going pit-a-pat when the right girl comes along.

And there is this to say about Mr. Montana—he will never be dragged away from his new bride through those mischievous actions which distinguish matinee idols from the common or garden variety of man. Mrs. Montana need have no fear that the Boo! will be picked up by gushing ladies who crave a bit of romance at the expense of some other girl's spouse. The Boo! is a bogie man in Hollywood where the girls are concerned. That is, all the girls except Miss Poulson.

Textile Terrorism

At this distance it may be impossible to obtain an accurate slant on the reasons for the terrorism, the bludgeoning and the killing incident to a strike of textile mill workers in the Gastonia, S. C., region, but judging by what gets into the newspapers the people of that neighborhood are gradually exorcising themselves out of permanent slugs.

Labor wars are costly affairs. They cause manufacturers to lose clients. They cause workers to lose jobs. They cause communities to deteriorate and die of dry rot. They hamper progress and bring about stagnation of retail business. In general, they are detrimental to everyone, from the employer to the employee.

There has been much blood spilled in the South Carolina textile war. There may be more blood shed. Why? Because workers listened to radical and self-appointed "leaders" instead of reasoning out for themselves the situation that arose. More wages was the cry. There is no way of knowing whether more wages could be paid, or if more wages were needed. It appears that communistic spellbinders got into the field, organized the workers, called a strike, and otherwise rode high-handed over the workaholics who trailed along with them.

Labor disputes which result in strikes, shootings, midnight assassinations and such are not conducive to healthy industrial or community growth. The sooner Gastonia, S. C., finds this out and puts a stop to the civil warfare in its city, the better off that entire region will be. Arbitration will do more than force where labor disputes are concerned.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.—Americans can claim direct credit for a large measure of Germany's success in reestablishing her industry and her trade since the war for they are the ones who have put up the money in large part to finance the rehabilitation. Although but little more than a decade ago the United States and Germany were bitter enemies, we were calling them Huns and they were upbraiding us, since the Armistice we have lent them, both the German government and private German enterprises the huge sum of $1,158,500,000. German issues offered here have been snapped up with nothing short of avidity. Indeed, the sum really is millions greater than the tabulated figures are only for issues directly underwritten here. Issues handled by German firms through German and other foreign banking houses also have been purchased by American individuals and no official figures are available on the amount although it is known to have been large.

The story of American investment in German securities is one of absorbing interest. It will be remembered that the European war was in progress nearly three years before the United States became a belligerent. The very first German government loan ever offered in the United States was during the period of our neutrality. The emperor had declared the famous 4,500,000,000 mark issue which was to finance his victory. Of that Americans bought $10,000,000. A year later another German war loan was floated. Of this second one Americans bought $10,500,000. A significant light on Germany's firm conviction that she would win a speedy victory is thrown by the fact that these were short term issues, the second issue for only one year.

A year later we were in the war on the side of the Allies. Nearly four years elapsed before another German security was underwritten here.

The first post war operation was a relatively small offering of the city of Frankfurt and Americans bought $52,500 worth. Then there was a lapse until 1922 when Berlin borrowed $50,000 and Elberfeld, $297,000. In the same year two German banks sold bonds here to the extent of $200,000, to obtain funds to lend to their countrymen.

In the autumn of 1924 feeling apparently had died down for German borrowing in this market began in earnest. The German government sold $110,000,000 of its bonds arising out of the first workings of the Dawes plan. Private offerings amounting to $8,000,000 were sold the same year.

In 1925 the tide set in in earnest and the huge total of $222,000,000 in German bonds of all classes was marketed here. There were 33 separate issues absorbed by Americans. Municipalities borrowed $50,000,000 to rehabilitate their public utilities and corporations floated bonds, guaranteed by the government to the extent of $141,000,000. The Central Bank of Agriculture borrowed $19,000,000 and the remainder was made up of various loans for industry.

The next year, 1926, was the banner year since the total of $294,942,000 was reached.

In 1927 the total borrowings rose to $230,500,000—less than the previous peak year but still a large volume.

Though not the most interesting from the point of view of volume of borrowings, the most unusual borrowers which probably ever appeared in Wall Street asking for money were the Roman Catholic church of Bavaria, the Roman Catholic church welfare organizations and the Protestant church in Germany. The Dresdner Bank, the world famous Deutsche Bank and even the Reichsbank itself sold stock here.

In 1928 the demand for money again increased marking the second highest year, bond and stock issues totaling $292,000,000 being sold here. The big cities, the public utilities, and the industries as well as the banks requiring more and more funds. But the first half of the current year showed an abrupt drop. Borrowings have amounted to only $27,000,000 so far. This has been due to the fact that the plenipotentiaries were at work all during that period on a readjustment of the reparations. No one wanted to declare big bond issues until the matter was settled.

Government loans during the entire period since 1914 have been less than one third of the total indicating that the money has gone directly into industrial enterprises calculated to increase wealth. Germany is rising from the ashes of the war on the wings of American dollars but the investments are regarded as perfectly sound and will be repaid, principal and interest.

The Legion and Peace.

The American Legion is for peace—it has seen enough of war, having been a vital part of the greatest war machine that ever operated on earth. Its influence is for peace, but for rational peace. It stands for proper preparation for war, because it realizes that human nature has not been changed even by the horrid experience of the late stupendous conflict.

The feeling of the legion is well expressed by an editorial by Blake in the Chicago Tribune, who refers to a letter from the great American, Admiral Mahan, to his friend, Mr. Carter Fitzhugh, as early as 1914. He said:

"At present—and probably for several years—probably for generations—the suffering and social disturbance attending this war will discipline people to a new ideal. But the crisis will grow over the graves, the trouble be partly forgotten, and new causes of offense will cause new wars until the spirits of men undergo a change. The human heart, acting upon sentiments and interests, is the cause of war; no methods can avoid except as they deal with the inner man."

The admiral knew the infirmities of common humanity. The legion knew men. War will be stopped when men are ready to stop, but not before. The present head of the legion recently declared that one of the best ways to stop human conflict is to take out of it the element of profit. And this is so. The universal draft probably may do that business. At least he advises, this nation should be prepared in adequate measure for any possible war contingency.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Rosalie has been rummaging around in an old trunk, and came across this dress which was in style a quarter of a century ago, and its resemblance to some of the lines of the present day frocks struck her. Even to the long gloves, which have been revived for evening wear, the costume might almost be an up-to-date evening dress. The familiar off-the-ears coiffure is another throw-back to the days of the Gibson girl.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The softest spot in America for the personable young bachelor with a pronounced aversion for work is New York. He may—and many do—live in comparative splendor indefinitely without turning a well-manicured hand to honest toil.

The town is so full of busy husbands intent on getting ahead and providing an estate for their families that the acceptable bachelor is becoming a part of the personnel in many homes. Husbands who have time for social affairs find a trusting celibate.

This is not a signal for every bachelor to quit his job and romp to New York expecting to live in idleness and luxury. The standard demands certain requirements. The bachelor must be fairly young, good looking, have a flair for correct clothes and agreeable conversation. And, of course, the romantic touch of silver in his hair.

It is understood he is not to fall in love with ladies he escorts about. His job is to be on call for dinner engagement, for the theater, the opera, the night club and all the multifarious activities of the social whirl. While there is no regular stipend, he mingles with people who are always able to turn an honest penny his way without making him feel the moocher. The formula is quite simple. The husband is generally a man of affairs who makes frequent financial investments.

"I am having George," explains the wife, "buy you several hundred shares of such-and-such. His broker will bill you." Instead George's broker sends him a sizeable check for his share of the winnings. His "winnings" are usually more than he could earn.

The bachelor of this type is rarely a philanderer. He is he to a good thing and intends nursing it by being a perfect gentleman at all times. Any undue advantage of this arrangement ends the association. Thus the bachelor may become another society kept.

When a writer receives a letter beginning: "You are such a human person!" he sniffs the old oil. He is going to be asked to read a

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

In the letters coming to my desk are many relating to the various diseases of the mind and nervous system. Many people ask me about epilepsy and what can be done for its relief.

When I was a boy in the lower grades I had a schoolmate named Willie. He used to have "fits." The poor little chap would let out a yell, fall on the floor in a convulsion, froth at the mouth and bite his tongue.

Even in that remote day I expected to be a doctor. The teacher knew this so she always assigned me to the duty of taking care of Willie. He was my first patient!

I don't know who told me to do it but the first step of my treatment always was to keep the teeth separated so as to prevent biting of the tongue. I kept a wooden clothes pin for this purpose and my first effort was to get it between his teeth. Aside from washing his face and preventing his bearing himself in his convulsive efforts, I recall doing nothing else. In fact that's about all a real doctor could do.

Epilepsy is one of the mysterious diseases. Its causes are obscure. It is quite probable that infection of some sort may be the root of the trouble.

It is wise for the epileptic to be given a thorough physical examination. Every effort must be made to discover and remove every possible source of infection. The progress made in the cure of functional insanity by getting rid of body poisons should be kept in mind in dealing with the epileptic. The medical profession is coming more and more to recognize the serious effect upon the system which follows the absorption of infections, found in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, generative organs and particularly the intestines.

It is expected that these poisons constantly absorbed by the blood must have serious effects upon the nervous system. Any poison, whether it comes from within or without the body, if taken in repeated doses is sure to create unpleasant symptoms. It may well be that epilepsy may be founded upon such a disturbance.

"IN HEADLINES" ON STATE BILL

All thrills, surprises and laughs experienced by a newspaper man in running down a murder mystery are vividly depicted in "In the Headlines," Warner Bros.' new all-talking Vitaphone picture of metropolitan newspaper life which comes to the State theater, Monday.

Opening with a baffling double murder, the story follows through the unraveling of the mystery brought about chiefly by the star reporter of the "News," portrayed by Grant Withers, and by the cub

UNCLE POM

By Henry C. Rowland

A sparkling, swift-moving mystery romance.

SYNOPSIS.

Pomeroy Penfold, a wealthy American widower nearing fifty, loves to travel and visit friends. When the story opens he is a guest at the chateau of his sister, Alicia, and her husband, the Comte de Reine. He is disturbed by the sight of an intruder—a man in a yacht costume—who appears on the estate and stares rudely at Maia, the comte's lovely 20-year-old daughter by a first marriage. Maia admits having met the man in America and says his name is Captain Seagrave.

That afternoon Kirby Colton, handsome scapegrace son of an American bishop, an old friend of the Penfold family, calls at the chateau unexpectedly and is invited by the comte to spend the night. He, too, has met Maia in America, and Uncle Pom thinks she is the reason for his appearance.

The comte surprises Uncle Pom by telling him that Maia loves him reporter, played delightfully by Marian Nixon.

Their exciting experiences in getting the story for the paper provide much of the tense drama of "In the Headlines," and their absorption in each other much of the fun.

The cast includes Clyde Cook, Frank Campeau, Edmund Breese, Pauline Garon, Vivian Oakland, Robert Ober, Hallam Cooley, Ben Hall, Spec O'Donnell, Jack Wise and others. John G. Adolfi directed.

CERAMIC BOOKS DOUG McLEAN

Al Christie has lined up a high-powered cast for the Douglas MacLean all-talking feature production, "Divorce Made Easy," which is to be seen at the Ceramic theater, Monday and Tuesday.

Marie Prevost carries the part of the feminine lead, that of a young married woman whose husband gets her to agree to a divorce so that he can pacify a wealthy maiden aunt who threatens to cut him off in her will. The plotters decide to get married again as soon as the aunt provides the husband with an income. The divorce scheme, which Douglas MacLean tries to help them make perfect, fails, but the farce situations materialize abundantly.

Johnny Arthur, Jack Duffy, Frances Lee and Dot Farley have supporting roles in the production. Jack Duffy and Frances Lee have both been starring in Christie short pictures this season, while Johnny Arthur was an Educational star and made his talking debut in Warner's "On Trial" with an outstanding comedy part.

and indicates that the marriage would please him. The girl is more than 20 years his junior and while Penfold has always admired her enormously the thought of marriage has never entered his head. Maia overhears them and confirms her father's remarks.

Later she confesses that both Kirby and Seagrave have proposed to her. Uncle Pom knows the two men hate each other and fears they will clash. He goes to find Kirby and is attacked from behind and knocked unconscious; the money belt he wears, containing priceless diamonds, is stolen. That night a prowler in his room attempts to choke him and escapes. Maia suspects Seagrave of both attacks, but Kirby astonishes everyone by offering an alibi for his rival. He declares he saw him down the beach at the time it occurred. He tells Uncle Pom that he has come, not to see Maia but to borrow one thousand dollars from his father's friend in order to save an innocent girl from trouble. Penfold gives him the money.

INSTALLMENT XII.

MAIA'S DISCOVERY.

Mr. Penfold has shoved the checks across the iron table toward Kirby as fast as signed, and, having no blotter, Kirby let them dry.

He said a little thickly, "If there is a place in heaven reserved for the disinterested giver, then you'll find a ringside seat waiting for you, Uncle Pom."

This return to the address of Kirby's early years moved Mr. Penfold strangely. "O, I don't know, Kirby. Some day we might get shipwrecked together, and then I believe if you found a biscuit in your pocket you'd give me half."

"Are you a man with such transparent faith in the lowest of God's creatures, sir, as to believe Kirby Colton capable of an unselfish act?"

"Well, I'd call thrusting an alibi for crime on a man you hate when you are the only other person close to the scene of said crime altruistic," Mr. Penfold said. "Especially when your reputation is none too good and you are admittedly hard up."

"Call it perversity," Kirby said. "Or a high-falutin' gesture. I've always fancied myself as a Prince Florinzel. Can't help falling for the noble stuff." He drew down the corners of his youth. "Footlight folly." He glanced down at the array of checks on which the signatures were slowly drying in the soft, humid air. "Doesn't it quite check up with this, does it?"

"No, it doesn't," Mr. Penfold admitted. "But still it strikes a balance of sorts."

Maia came out on to the terrace. Kirby, seated with his back to the house, did not catch sight of her immediately. Mr. Penfold, facing him, glanced inquiringly at Maia's face and received the impression of a young woman hitherto a stranger to him, just as he had happened the day before, when Maia had turned to catch sight of Seagrave. This time, however, the hostility in her gaze as it rested on Kirby was hostile and accusing rather than wary. She glanced down on the array of checks that strewn the perforated iron table and her wide mouth curved in a hard, contemptuous smile.

Kirby looked round suddenly. He looked at Maia's face, then his eyes rested on one of her hands that she held in front of her. Mr. Penfold caught sight of a rimless glass monocle, dangling from a single cord, Maia offered it to Kirby.

"Yours, isn't it?" she asked. "Why, yes, thank you," Kirby rose. "Where did you find it?"

"Besides the door sill of the closet in my room. Under the corner of a rug. It looks as if the cord had been charred."

"Must have brushed it with a cigarette," Kirby said.

"How do you suppose it got there?" Maia asked. "You were wearing it at dinner last night."

"When your maid moved my things into the other room after Mr. Penfold was brought in last evening, she overlooked a black suitcase I'd shoved back into the corner of the closet," Kirby said. "I missed it this morning, and

Each picture will be numbered and in order to compete in this contest it will be necessary for you to identify each one, starting with number one and continuing up to and including number 25.

The picture will consist of various business men or business women store managers and store fronts, but each picture will be some part of one of the advertisers' business. There will be only one picture for each of the advertisers whose name appears on this page. Many of the pictures you will recognize easily; others you may be in doubt about, but all you need to do to identify them is to take the picture each week to any of the business places whose advertisement appears here and ask any of the employees if the picture represents their place of business.

Any advertiser on the page will be glad to answer your question. Start in right away. See if you can identify the picture that appears today.

MEMORY ROAD RALLY TUESDAY

Meeting Will be Held in Carnegie Library.

A four-county meeting in behalf of the river-to-lake Road of Remembrance will be held in the assembly room in the Carnegie library, Fourth street, at 2 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon.

Plans for the gathering have been made by representatives of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce and the Columbiana County Motor club. Members of the American Legion are also co-operating.

Albert Cooper, president of the Mahoning county commissioners and head of the organization which is furthering the road project, will preside.

Attorney W. H. Vodrey, as chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the meeting, will introduce Cooper.

Other members of the committee are: Joseph Betz, president of the Chamber of Commerce; T. H. Fisher, president of the Rotary Club; Harry B. Keyes, president of the Kiwanis club; K. W. Gero, president of the Lions Club; J. Homer Browne, commander of the

Deny Beetham Quits

Reports here are that the resignation was on the governor's desk before newspapers announcing Gray's selection were on the street. It was stated that nothing has been done about the matter because Cooper is being urged to try to persuade Beetham to remain in office.

Post Pays $7,500.

Beetham was persuaded to take the prohibition post, it is reliably reported, with the understanding that he might get the banking department position as soon as it became vacant. The latter office pays $7,500 a year, which is the highest salary in the state administration outside of the governor's $10,000.

Before E. H. Blair, Democrat, resigned as banking superintendent, Gray had many endorsements for the post. He was serving his fourth term as Harrison county representative and has been honored twice by being elected as speaker of the lower house of the general assembly, and was the first speaker to be re-elected since 1863.

Gray recently resigned as cashier of the First National bank here. Beetham is president of the Fourth National bank, situated in the same block as Gray's bank.

"RIO RITA" IS COLORFUL

Fighting Roosters in Musical Comedy Hit.

In the colorful first act of "Rio Rita," which comes to the Ceramic theater, Wednesday, there is a real chicken fight, staged by two Mexicans. For this scene, it was necessary to bring from Mexico three pairs of game cocks. This number was essential because these fighting roosters are "temperamental" much like prima donnas and other stage folk. If the stage manager forces any given pair of the cocks to fight two performances in succession, they put on a perfunctory battle. So, it was found necessary to alternate the fowls in order to secure a lively encounter at each performance. One of the gamecocks in the aggregation is a former champion of Luis Potosi. He "Lost His Belt" one night to a fierce rooster from Monterey, and so now he is appearing in "Rio Rita" and seems to be enjoying his tour of the states very much. His only bad habit is crowing lustily after every appearance, and since a fervent love scene follows his fight, the stage attaches rush him out into the property room or alleyway, in his private crate, the moment his "act" is finished.

CUBS CONCEDED EDGE OVER MACKS IN ATTACK

Top A's In Run Scoring, Total Hits, Total Bases

Capable of Nine-man Punch Where Athletics Are Wanting; Smaller Ball Park May be Factor, Too.

By Davis J. Walsh.
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Having voted yesterday for the Athletics as the better defensive combination—and simultaneously declaring that defense in general runs hurriedly for McSwigun if they lay you like a sidewalk with the first punch—I can't very well afford to send the same club in on the attack. For one thing Landis probably would hear about it and call the series off. For another, it wouldn't be true. The Cubs appear to have the scuder and more sustained attack.

This opinion has to be based on the averages. It is an unsatisfactory method, and perhaps it lacks logic but when two teams who operate in different leagues, play different teams and different pitching an' use different playing fields, are being considered, there is no other basis of comparison. Using it, therefore, for what it may be worth, we find the Cubs topping the Athletics in practically every department of attack. They lead in run scoring, total hits, total bases. They have hit approximately 20 more home runs, have batted in about sixty more runs and have stolen something like thirty more bases.

Macks Lead in Triples.
Only in three base hits do the Athletics show in front, which is something of a tip-off on the available figures. A drive is either a double or a home run at the Cubs park.

This might account, in part, for the Cubs superiority in total runs, total bases, home runs and perhaps runs driven in. It doesn't account for the Cubs' superiority in total hits or in two base hits and stolen bases. I'm admitting, however, that base stealing has played no great part in former series, a notable exception being Max Carey's steal of third, the psychological gesture that, for my part, decided the final game of the 1925 series.

Anyhow, the Cubs' record plainly says that they do more things to that base—all, just as the Athletics' record says that they can do more things with it. It remains to be seen how much, if any of this superior hitting and run scoring is due to the smaller park in Chicago and how much, if any of it might be due to the alleged fact that the National is less of a pitcher's league than the American, a theory held in some quarters.

Frankly, I suspect that the Cubs' attack is entitled to most of the break that the averages seem to give them. The Athletics' attack may improve accordingly with four of the seven games scheduled for Chicago, yet potentially the Athletics lack the nine-man punch of the Cubs. The differences lie largely with Boley and Bishop, the second base combination.

Compare Sluggers.
Hornsbey, for example, admittedly is the big gun of the Cub offense. The Athletics can match him with Simmons. Both are right hand hitters well up around .370, and they not only hit them consistently but far. I also would be willing to match Fox with Stephenson for consistency or with either Cuyler or Wilson for slugging. In fact, if it were to be a case of the big four against the big four—Simmons, Fox, Miller and Cochran versus Hornsbey, Stephenson, Cuyler and Wilson—I would venture to say that the thing looks the part of a stand-off.

Probing beyond the big shots, we find Grimm and English of the Cubs aligned opposite Dykes and Haas, of the Athletics, and, if anything, I like the last two. They have out-hit the Cub pair in the interleague averages and I wouldn't care to say that they haven't hit as opportunely, either.

However, McMillan, of the Cubs, has been considerably a better hitter from every standpoint than Boley of the Athletics.

As for Bishop, he has been in a prolonged slump all season and, I might add, a surprising slump. He was quite a hitter last year. However, I don't mind telling you that they have made up their minds to play this year's series this year. So we will have to accept Bishop as he is, which happens to be a .235 hitter, according to the last averages I got. Even Zach Taylor, the stopgap catcher of the Cubs, can top that with thirty points to spare and I don't care what kind of pitching you use, either. A man with a .235 average simply isn't hitting in any league.

One make 'em, other breaks 'em so, we wind up with something of an impasse, with one club apparently having the greater penchant for producing runs and the other having the greater tendency to stop them from being produced. This as I see it, makes the perfect world series. There should be no odds except if you wish to play the hunch that the Cubs get a break on the first two games being scheduled for the home

Potters, Dixies Clash Tomorrow at West Point.

The Pottery copped the first half bunting and the Dixies landed the second.

Holman to Carry Ball More; Fouch Is Given Signal Job

Ohio State Mentor Gradually Rounding Out His Starting Squad.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21.—After a week of almost continuous shifting of positions, Coach Sam Willaman at Ohio State is slowly rounding out what will be his first team when the whistle ushers in the 1929 football season, just two weeks from today. A light scrimmage was held yesterday in which some new material showed up to advantage.

Allan Holman, the Iowa flash, about whom so much concern was felt prior to the announcement that he was eligible for one more year of competition, has been shifted to a halfback berth. He will be the key man of the backfield and is expected to do most of the ball totting. His former position at quarterback, which he held so well last year, has been taken over by George Fouch, a senior who has won two letters.

Other substitutes are uncertain, but the second eleven which will be designed to be as strong as the first team, will take form in a few days.

GRIFFITH K. O.'s COOK IN THIRD

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Tuffy Griffith today was in possession of the confidence which comes of having knocked out five tough heavyweights in a row, for last night he stepped out and battered George Cook, Australian, winning by a technical knockout.

The battle lasted three and one-half rounds. As the fourth wore along Griffith had Cook floundering helplessly under his smashing rights and lefts. A right hand smash to the jaw dropped Cook, but he clung to his feet.

ROUTIS TO RISK FEATHER TITLE

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 21.—The featherweight championship of the world will be at stake here Monday evening when Andre Routis of France and Bat Battalino, local favorite, square off in a scheduled twelve-round bout.

Unless Routis is in excellent physical condition, Battalino, a fastly maturing 126-pounder, may strip him of his laurels.

Only Two District Grid Teams In Action Today

East Liverpool-Canton Clash at Patterson Field at 3 p. m.; Newell Slated For Battle at Lisbon.

ONLY two district high school football teams will go into action this afternoon.

Topping the schedule is the East Liverpool-Canton McKinley battle at Patterson Field this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Nate Lorah's Newell high combine, which, opened its campaign last Saturday at Bridgeport, takes to the road again with an engagement billed at Lisbon.

Wellsville will pry off the lid the following Saturday at Beaver, Pa., while Chester does not open fire until Oct. 5, with New Brighton carded at Chester.

With almost perfect weather conditions prevailing, local school authorities look to the shattering of all-time attendance records for a single game this afternoon, with the exception possibly, of the Wellsville-East Liverpool combats here and it is entirely possible this afternoon's gallery will top those figures.

The East Liverpool youngsters go into the battle decidedly the underdogs, but underdogs have been known at times to get up and bite an offending leg or two.

In all probability, Peabody, Canton coach, will depend in this afternoon's game on speed and deception coupled with the open style of play. With an unbalanced line formation and good interference, he is expecting his backs to cut some fancy capers around opposing flanks.

Schott and Fehn are the only two backfield men of considerable weight and as a result Peabody has drilled his ball carriers in speed tactics rather than a crushing drive of the style which marked their victory over the locals a year ago at Canton.

SHARKEY SPARS WITH EMANUEL

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Sept. 21.—In an effort to perfect an attack that will pierce the armor of Tommy Loughran, Jack Sharkey planned to use Armand Emanuel, coast heavyweight, as a sparring mate. Emanuel, who lost a close decision to Loughran last year, employs a ring style quite similar to the former light-heavyweight champion.

Unless the weather moderates making it possible for him to "melt" away poundage, Sharkey will enter the ring Thursday night weighing 195, three more pounds than he had planned on.

Carbisello, Volino Released On Bail

Friends of Two Wellsville Men Charged With Liquor Violation Secure Bonds of $5,000 Each.

WELLSVILLE, O., Sept. 21.—Joe Carbisello and Giuseppe L. Volino, Wellsville, arrested by Sheriff William Barlow last week on a liquor charge following a raid on a plant near Highlandtown north of the city, today were released from the county jail, at Lisbon.

Indictment was returned against the pair by the grand jury, charging them with manufacturing distilled liquor.

When arraigned before Judge W. P. Lones in common pleas court, they entered pleas of not guilty and were held for trial with bond set at $5,000 in each case.

After the court had fixed the amount of the bond, it was signed by a number of Wellsville property owners and the men were released.

Carbisello and Volino have retained Attorney Robert H. Brookes, East Liverpool.

Eastbound Bellaire-Pittsburgh train will arrive at 4:30 under the new schedule. The Cleveland-Pittsburgh train, due at 6:08 p. m., will arrive at 6:18 p. m.

PENNSY SPEEDS WINTER FREIGHT

The Pennsylvania railroad today announced that the custom whereby freight schedules between important eastern and western points were, on Dec. 1, made one-day longer during the winter months than in the summer, will be abandoned this year and the summer schedule now in force will continue during the coming winter.

The summer schedule now in force provides that westbound perishable freight and merchandise from seaboard and other eastern cities to Chicago and St. Louis is delivered at destinations the third morning, similar schedules being maintained eastward.

Not only will these through schedules be continued during the coming winter but similar action will also be taken with respect to the trains operating between seaboard cities and intermediate points such as Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Indianapolis.

The change from the summer to the winter schedules was made in the past in order to allow an additional day in transit on account of weather conditions, but the company is confident that with the great improvements made during the last few years in operating conditions, which have placed the service upon the basis of the greatest efficiency ever recorded, it will be possible to maintain the same schedule throughout the winter as has been observed during the summer.

finding the room empty, I went in and got it."

"Fanch carried up your things when you arrived," Mala said, "and he moved them into the room downstairs. Stupid of him to overlook the suitcase, wasn't it?"

"O. not entirely," Kirby said, then appeared suddenly to catch the significance of Mala's tone. He checked himself and laughed.

Mr. Penfold looked disturbed. Mala's expression had chilled him, and now Kirby's short laugh did not strike his ears with a pleasant note. Also his explanation of the suitcase shoved back in the shawl low closet, while ready enough did not ring true. Why should Kirby have stowed away a piece of his luggage in the depths of the closet? And even having done so for some reason, it was not good form to have entered a room at the moment occupied by Mala to retrieve it. A young man of Kirby's savoir faire would have sent a servant after it.

Kirby gave him a quick questioning look and his face sobered. "More and blacker circumstantial evidence. I can't alibi Seagrave this time, though."

"It wasn't Seagrave last night," Mr. Penfold said. "It was a shorter and, it seemed to me, a broader man."

"About Kirby's build," Mala said, "but he was quick and active, and even though he spoke in a whisper it did not sound like native French." She looked steadily at Kirby and added, "He had a black muffled tied across his face."

"Like the one I was wearing to drive in?" Kirby asked.

"Yes. And a long coat." Her tawny eyes glowed at him.

"Dear me," Kirby sighed, "it looks bad. I rather got from Mr.

Penfold's description that it was a burly, powerful ruffian."

"Such was my impression," Mr. Penfold said. "He seemed to pounce on me like a hairy ape. Why did you stow your suitcase back in the closet, Kirby?"

"Force of habit, sir. I've been coddlin' that valise and tucking it away in corners or sleeping with it under my bed for the last three years. It contains all that I possess of value, or am ever likely to possess. If poor old dad sticks to his intention of leaving a trust fund for me when he goes to his just reward—and my brother Carter as trustee."

Mala said in a voice as strange to Mr. Penfold as the new glacial expression of her face. "Our guests' property has always been safe at Chateau de Rennes, until yesterday."

"Of course," Kirby said. "I explained that it was merely force of habit, now become in the nature of a reflex. The bag contains nothing but a lot of papers that are of value only to myself. If they were negotiable, I'd scarcely have grafted on Mr. Penfold for these."

He waved his hand at the ten checks for one hundred dollars each.

"Really?" Mala's voice was throaty and low, a purr. "I've heard it said that you had cheek enough for anything, and I'd say that it was right."

She looked at Kirby curiously, as she might have looked at some sort of poisonous insect that was of brilliant hues, iridescent and winged. Kirby glanced at Mr. Penfold, then reached down, gathered the checks into a sheaf and laid them in front of him.

"Perhaps Mala's right, sir," he said. "I think I'd better not take these."

For the first time since he had been at the chateau Mr. Penfold's face showed his scan 50 years. It was slightly pale, lined, and sagged a trifle at the corners of the mouth. Its expression was weary, dejected, and puzzled. But now he roused himself, then shook his head.

"Eh, what? No, Kirby," he pushed the stack of checks back across the table. "You had better keep them for your immediate necessity, whatever that may be." He gave a faint smile. "I still believe what I said about that half biscuit."
